Dear Sirs,

All of us are aware that Water is one of the most precious resource for sustenance of life, wellbeing of our citizens and for continued socio-economic growth. Therefore, a great deal of focussed attention is required for its optimum & efficient management. Considering the fact that what cannot be measured and cannot be managed, Department of Water Resources, River Development and Ganga Rejuvenation (DOWR, RD & GR) has taken the lead to improve the water resources data acquisition and management system in the country. As such, under this pursuit, DOWR, RD & GR has launched National Hydrology Project (NHP) on pan India basis to develop & strengthen the water resources and allied thematic data collection and dissemination mechanism across the country through State & Central Implementing agencies.

2. As a step forward, a dedicated organization, National Water Informatics Centre (NWIC) has been setup with national perspective for storage, maintenance, updating, collation & dissemination of water resources data to all stake holders. Multilayer GIS enabled IT platform India-WRIS (Water Resources Information System) has already been developed for data analysis & dissemination of theme-based data through various dashboards with download facility. The platform is accessible to general public through internet on <https://indiawris.gov.in/>. Another platform, Water Information Management System (WIMS) for data collection from all across country through web-based entry & telemetry employing latest mobile & satellite technology has also been developed & accessible through web which automatically feeds the information into India-WRIS.

3. NWIC has been set up not only to act as the repository of water resources data but to serve the states by carrying out advanced analytics on the data, development of decision support systems/knowledge products and disseminating the same to the states. As per the present set up, India WRIS and WIMS captures macro level data only that too mainly related to source side. However, as you know, for proper analysis of data and development of analytical tools as required by the states, the requirement of demand side data and micro level data is also required. Water being state subject, the data as above is available with the respective states. However, data available with the states is fragmented and stored in various forms across many departments/ organisations/ establishments of the concerned State.

4. Thus, there comes role of State Water Informatics Centres (SWIC) which are supposed to act as a hub for coordination, collection and validation of data pertinent to the state and its seamless integration with NWIC for carrying out meaningful analysis and development of knowledge products. NWIC and SWICs are proposed to work in a collaborative manner wherein the data available with NWIC in India WRIS and WIMS, computational resources, hardware, software and hosting infrastructure can be made available to SWIC apart from generic applications and analytical tools developed by NWIC. NWIC shall also support the SWICs in development of state specific applications related to water management. SWICs working in close coordination with NWIC on common data format, standards & software would lead to ease of data flow, seamless sharing across the nation leading to quick roll out of applications and common knowledge-based products in the most cost-effective manner. Therefore, the SWIC would not only act as hub for State Water Resources Information system but also would transform itself into Water knowledge centres for the states.

5. National Hydrology Project is already supporting the implementing states technically and as well as financially through grant in aid which inter alia contain components related to development of State WRIS and establishment of Water Resources data centres. Now need of the hour is to institutionalise these arrangements by setting up State Water Informatics Centres by the state on priority basis.

6. To give a clear picture about requirement of SWIC, its mandate, role of NWIC in supporting the SWIC, a concept note has been prepared and appended herewith for your kind perusal. The likely challenges in setting up the SWIC, solutions and way forward has also been specified in the document. An attempt has also been made to capture the information related to existing water resources information system in the states and made part of the concept note which state may like to refine/modify.

7. I, therefore solicit your valuable suggestions to make concept of SWIC more fruitful and workable. Apart from taking institutional step towards establishment of SWIC, it would be prudent if simultaneously, state formulates its water resources data dissemination policy which would form the back bone of the effective functioning of SWIC as SWIC is mandated to coordinate with different departments and organisations of the states dealing with water resources.

8. You are also requested to direct the concerned department to update the information on current status of water resources information system in your state as per the Table 1 (Chapter 1) of the Concept note as the same would help NWIC to strategize the resources for providing support to the states.

7. Once feedback on Concept of establishing SWIC is obtained, we intend to organise a Workshop in real or virtual mode as per the prevailing conditions at that time to further fine tune the way forward.

8. I would appreciate if your valuable suggestions are conveyed to Director, NWIC (email id: dir-nwic-mowr@gov.in) by 15th June 2021. You are also requested to nominate a senior officer of the state with whom NWIC would further coordinate in this matter.

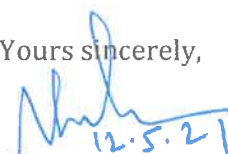

Warm regards
